

Why every programming language from the past 50 years includes a linker ?
Programs always use modules separated in different files. Therefore the need for linking them into one big file.